General Information:

Project ID
Project name	Facilitating Reforestation: Guangxi Watershed - Pearl River Basin
Secondary name	Facilitating Reforestation for Guangxi Watershed Management in Pearl River Basin
Last Update	22 Sep 2020
Size (hectare)	4000
Start year	2006
End year	2036

The Facilitating Reforestation for Guangxi Watershed Management in Pearl River Basin project is establishing 3000 hectares of multiple-use forests with mostly native species. This project aims to reduce threats to local forests and generate income for poor communities by enabling the carbon sequestered by reforestation plantations to act like a “virtual cash crop” for the local project beneficiaries. The overall objective of the project is to explore and demonstrate the technical and methodological approaches related to credible carbon sequestration and pilot the viability of enhancing the livelihoods of people and native biodiversity by facilitating reforestation activities in watershed areas along the Pearl River Basin. A total of 4,000 ha will be planted in different sites.

Project description
Objective 1	biodiversity conservation
Objective 2	climate
Objective 3	social development
Deforestation drivers	cattle grazing;energy wood;fire;industrial agriculture or cattle ranching
Type of forest	humid
Project Type	ARR
Details for Afforestation/Reforestation projects	plantation
Project located in an official IUCN protected area	no
Dominant type	ARR
Country ID	156
Country
Name of the protected area	9999
Category of protected area (IUCN classification)	ND
Status	Ongoing
Multiple location?	Non
Region	Asia
