Al Dahra owns and manages four large agricultural projects in Egypt and cultivates a wide variety of crops, spreading over 20,000 acres of land. Al Dahra Egypt is specialized in land reclamation and agricultural development and has invested heavily in building a solid infrastructure comprising wells, drip and pivot irrigation systems, pumping stations, filtration units, processing plants and sorting and packing units. In addition, it has developed advanced logistics capabilities for domestic and overseas distribution and has invested in the latest agricultural equipment and logistics machinery.

In particular, Al Dahra Egypt cultivates and produces about 50,000 metric tons of wheat annually dedicated for local consumption and 25,000 tons of corn.

In addition, through its partnership with the Rudnap Agrar group, Al Dahra has access to about 2,000 hectares of land in Serbia dedicated for the cultivation of wheat and corn, allowing for grains trading in Europe and other continents.
