Vietnam launches rubber project in Cambodia

The Phu Rieng Rubber Company from the southern province of Binh Phuoc has conducted a geographical survey and started reclaiming wasteland to plant 20,000 hectares of rubber in Kratie province of Cambodia.

This is the first step taken by the Vietnam Rubber Corporation to implement its project on planting 180,000 ha of rubber in three Cambodian provinces, including Mundunkiri and Kongpong Thom.

To ensure the project's success, the Corporation has decided to set up a steering committee on rubber development in Cambodia for the 2006-2010 period. The Phu Rieng Rubber Company, a subsidy of the Corporation, is conducting location surveys and developing an investment project.
