

SUPPORTING INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

☰ Menu

Home » Land Rights introduction » Land Rights in Africa articles » Land, life and justice. How land grabbing in Uganda is affecting the environment, livelihoods and food sovereignty of communities

Land, life and justice. How land grabbing in Uganda is affecting the environment, livelihoods and food sovereignty of communities

April 2012

Friends of the Earth
International

Investigates cases of land grabbing in Uganda, focusing in particular on oil palm plantations in Kalangala, Lake Victoria. Argues that land grabbing in Uganda is intensifying and spreading throughout the country, depriving local communities of access to natural resources, exacerbating rural poverty and aggravating the risk of food crises.

Associated publication

Download publication

Go to...

© Mokoro Ltd, The Old Music Hall, 106-108 Cowley Road, Oxford, OX4 1JE, United Kingdom
Website by Archetype Design
All photos © Mokoro Ltd

