General

2015-05-10

The mine was closed in 1989 due to the civil war in Liberia. In 2008, China-Union Investment Co. Ltd. announced a US$2.6 billion dollar project to renovate the Bong Mines, located 150 km north of Monrovia. The mine was formerly operated by a German company, but production was interrupted by the Liberian Civil War (1989-2003). The formal agreement was signed on January 9, 2009. Initial stages of the project began in 2010, including geological surveys. It was reported that China-Union Investment Co. Ltd. initially agreed on the project, but was unable to come up with the needed funds. As a result, China Africa Development Fund (CADF) temporarily purchased 85% of the project and negotiated a settlement with the Liberian government, making the project more appealing to potential Chinese buyers. Wuhan Iron and Steel (Group) Corporation (WISCO) of Hong Kong, now owns a 60% stake in China-Union Investment Co.

The Liberian Ministry of Lands, Mines and Energy has approved the restart of the processing plant at dual-listed Aureus Mining's New Liberty gold mine. The company in early May temporarily suspended processing operations at the mine owing to problems with the detoxification circuit, which had not been operating to original design specifications, resulting in higher concentrations of weak acid dissociated cyanide in the process effluent.

2016-06-09

TSX- and Aim-listed Aureus Mining expects to restart processing at its Liberia-based flagship New Liberty mine by mid-June, after the country's Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) gave it permission to restart discharges from its tailing facility. Aureus had suspended gold processing operations early in May after only two months of operations, when the detoxification circuit were found to not be operating to original design specifications and leaked cyanide beyond the allowed limits.

Aureus hopes to resume New Liberty processing operations within weeks

2016-05-23

Dual-listed Aureus Mining expects to resume processing operations at its New Liberty gold mine, in Liberia, within two weeks, pending approval from the Liberia Ministry of Lands, Mines and Energy (MLME). The company earlier this month said it had temporarily suspended processing operations at the mine owing to problems with the detoxification circuit, which had not been operating to original design specifications, resulting in higher concentrations of weak acid dissociated cyanide in the process effluent. The plant had been operating with process water in a closed circuit, with zero discharge from the tailings storage facility (TSF); however, recent heavy rainfall had inadvertently resulted in a small overflow of effluent from the TSF into the wetlands area within the mining lease area.
